Arizona individual taxpayers have the opportunity to redirect state income tax to a variety of Arizona charities through the use of Arizona tax credit contributions. Contributions qualifying for tax credits are not deductible as charitable contributions on the Federal return, but, in some cases, may be deductible as state income tax. Taxpayers do not need to itemize to claim the tax credits. A couple filing a joint return in Arizona can qualify to redirect as much as $5,083 for 2022.

A taxpayer can contribute and take all the credits, subject to the amount of State tax for any particular year. The credits are non-refundable. Unused amounts of credits carry forward for five years, except for the military credit, which does not carry forward.
